

Hymn of the Sands Intro

Written by Hakan Borazanci hakanborazanci.com

Note: Lines are broken up as they correspond to different storyboard images and it also makes it easier for us to cut and edit the recorded dialogue.

Narrator:

In your time as Pharaoh, you have seen many things...

Seen the sun and moon rise over your lands

Seen the flooding of the Nile as it turned cracked sand into fertile dirt

You were beloved by your people

But now, that time is past

In death, you awaken, not as the Pharaoh, but as something more

Osiris, he who springs forth all life

God of the afterlife

God of eternal life

But your ascension into godhood comes at great risk

Ammit, the devourer of the dead, stands in your way

She judges all souls who travel to the nether world

Only the most worthy and powerful can become a god

In your temple, there are artifacts of great power

Stored there by your people to aid you in the afterlife

Pharaoh, take what is yours by birthright

Destroy those that would oppose you

Arise, Osiris